

Roberto J. Cavazos is a regulatory compliance and government affairs Associate with Project and Vendor Management Advisors, LLC (PVMA, LLC) and has over 25 years experience in several countries as an economist, policy analyst, public servant and academic. He can work on the range of any policy problem from data analysis and programming to strategic briefings. Mr. Cavazos has advised elected officials, organization executives and heads of state on policy matters and is bilingual and has native proficiency in Spanish. .

Mr. Cavazos currently has engagements with the U.S. Department of Commerce, U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, The Economic Development Administration and The Indian Health Service. He is Vice President and Co-Founder of American Opportunity for Housing a nonprofit organization which since its founding in 1998 has built or acquired and rehabbed over 17,000 housing units for low income families in 12 states. He also advises social investment funds in London and Madrid.

Mr. Cavazos led efforts in a range of contexts in the areas of economic development, trade, housing and humanitarian assistance. He developed strategies, policies and plans for the Australian Department of Trade and Economic Development, the Australian Housing Trust and the office of Premier and Cabinet. He also has provided executive education for senior managers in Asia, Australia, and Spain. Mr. Cavazos has been an advisor to the Department of Industry and Commerce for Papua New Guinea. He works with the DARA foundation in Madrid, Spain in improving its Humanitarian Response Index and in developing assessments of climate change impacts in African and Central American Countries.

Mr. Cavazos has practical experience within government. He worked under Texas Agriculture Commissioner Jim Hightower as a speechwriter and as chief economist. He also worked with Mr. Hightower on his radio show and Farm Aid U.S.A. Roberto also worked with The Hon. Elizabeth Holtzman Comptroller of the City of New York. He served as a senior advisor for policy and management and was responsible for oversight of all City of New York agencies engaged in economic development and trade promotion.

As an Academic, Mr. Cavazos was an Associate Professor at both Florida International University and subsequently at the Heinz School of Public Policy at Carnegie Mellon University, He taught only graduate courses in Econometrics, Statistics, Economics, Public Policy and Economic Growth and Innovation. He also served as senior advisor at the National Academy of Public Administration. His work has been published in the Quarterly Review of Economics and Finance, Journal of Media Economics, Review of Industrial Organization, Policy Review and others. He has published one book and chapters in edited works.

Roberto earned his BA MPA and PhD from the University of Texas.